

The Seven Trials of Cameron-Strange

By James Calum-Campbell

Price: £6.99

ISBN: 978-1-907605-83-3 PB

Publication: Autumn 2016

Praise for Click, Double-Click

Click, Double Click is a fascinating first novel, and it's not quite like anything I've ever read before. Readers seeking a different kind of crime novel, one that features a doctor instead of a detective, and the prevention rather than the solving of a crime, will enjoy it. Seasoned crime readers will also likely enjoy the wry, contemplative voice of Campbell's borderline antihero.

- Marya Pasciuto, Riffle Books

A real page turner, gripping and entertaining in so many ways. Novel plot, great characters, excellent sub-plots. Especially interesting to anyone involved in emergency medicine.

- Amazon reviewer

Fox stepped swiftly through the door. There was an audible click. And there came the sound of a bolt sliding into place.

What follows is the stuff of nightmares...

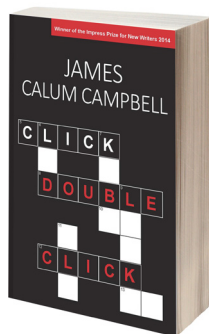

Just when the bereaved and troubled Dr Alastair Cameron-Strange rediscovers his life on the other side of the world, the British authorities track him down. They recruit him on a mission which takes him to the farthest reaches of New Zealand, to Xanadu with all its grotesque gargoyles, chief among them Phineas Fox, the American business tycoon whose baleful eye is on the White House. There's something not quite right about Mr Fox, and Cameron-Strange, with the help of the beautiful Nikki, is determined to find out what it is. He survives six ordeals, but will he survive a seventh?

Category:

Crime, mystery, thriller

Sales Highlights:

A thrilling series with a medical twist that will make for a good holiday read. Click, Double-Click, Campbell's debut, won the Impress Prize for New Writers in 2014. The third book in the series, Speedbird, will be published in 2017.

Click, Double-Click

978-1-907605-72-7

£6.99

253 pages

Crime, thriller,
Scottish crime

James Calum Campbell was born in Glasgow.

He read Medicine at Edinburgh, and practised in Papua New Guinea, Queensland, and Auckland, where he was Clinical Head of the busiest emergency department in Australasia. He now divides his time between Scotland and New Zealand. Visit his blog at jamescalumcampbell.wordpress.com.

@ImpressBooks1
@JCalumCampbell
#SevenTrials

@impress_books
#SevenTrials

www.facebook.com/ImpressPrize/